

This year, Europe will celebrate the 11th European Antibiotic Awareness Day (EAAD). The European Antibiotic Awareness day was established in 2008 by the European Commission in collaboration with EU agencies such as the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control, and EU member states. It has now become part of the World Antibiotic Awareness Week.

Each year, campaigns are organized at the local, national and international levels to raise awareness of antibiotic resistance and what can be done to combat it.

The goal of the EAAD is to raise awareness and to promote understanding of the dangers of losing the effectiveness of antibiotics due to the increase and spread of antimicrobial resistance in bacteria involved in the most prevalent and dangerous infections in humans.

To celebrate the 11th European Antimicrobial Awareness Day in Poland the National Medicines Institute within the Polish National Program for the Protection of Antibiotics, in cooperation with the Consumers, Health, Agriculture and Food Executive Agency (Chafea) invite to participate in the conference

Antimicrobial resistance - are we doing enough?

The Conference will cover the following topics:

- EU health projects focused on antimicrobial resistance
- Antimicrobial resistance surveillance of the most important pathogens responsible for infections in hospitals and communities
- Antimicrobial resistance monitoring in bacteria of animal origin
- One Health approach to antimicrobial resistance within the EU-JAMRAI project
- Actions under the Polish National Program for Protection of Antibiotics aimed at limiting the spread of multi-drug resistant bacterial pathogens
- Developing of the successful program of antibiotic stewardship in the community
- EU-JAMRAI Social Behavior Change Communication Strategy to reduce AMR and tackle HCAIs

The lecturers will be eminent Polish and foreign experts, who will present their own experiences in fighting with increase of the antimicrobial resistance. The conference will give the opportunity to listen to experts participating in the EU-JAMRAI project – Joint Action on Antimicrobial Resistance and Healthcare Associated Infections.

We invite you to participate in this interesting and important event.

The Conference will take place on December 12, 2018, from 10.00 am till 3.00 pm

Conference venue: Sheraton Warsaw Hotel, Bolesława Prusa 2, Warsaw, Poland.

Participation in the conference is free of charge.

All presentations will be simultaneously translated into Polish and English.

Registration is open until November 30, 2018.

AGENDA

REGISTRATION

PRIVACY STATEMENT